

First Data Privacy Notice and Consent

EthicsPoint is not a 112, 911, or other emergency service. Do not use this site to report immediate threats to life or property. To report such threats please contact your local authorities.

EthicsPoint is a confidential online reporting system that enables you to report suspected violation of company policies or applicable laws or regulations. EthicsPoint is operated and hosted by Navex, which is a third party vendor that First Data has engaged to help with processing ethics reports.

Use of EthicsPoint is voluntary. You are not required to provide any information you do not want to provide. However, applicable laws may restrict the information you can provide. Applicable laws may also require notification to any person(s) you identify in your report, but such notice would not reveal your name or identity.

The information you provide in connection with your report may include, your name and contact details, your location, your relationship to First Data, the name and title of all individuals you may be reporting, a description of the conduct you are reporting including all relevant details. The information (which may include but is not limited to personal data) may be collected, stored, processed, and shared between and among Navex and First Data's group companies for the purposes of receiving, investigating, verifying, processing, and resolving your report. Navex is contractually required to protect any personal data you provide.

First Data and Navex have operations and relationships around the world, so your information may be viewed in multiple countries (including Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Germany, India, and the USA) by employees of First Data and Navex. As a result the personal data you enter may be accessible in countries that provide different levels of legal protection for personal data than is provided by your home country.
