You’ve just reported a concern. What's next?

At Target, our culture of care means we are committed to responding appropriately to all concerns. By reporting your concerns, you help Target to resolve issues and create a positive workplace. Target looks into all reported concerns as confidentially and quickly as possible, which may require a formal investigation. The length of the investigation depends on, among other things, the nature of the allegation(s), the availability of witnesses, and the volume of documents for review.

We know some people may be hesitant to come forward and raise concerns. Knowing what to expect may help to reduce some stress. With that in mind, here’s an overview of the process.

1. Report
   Concern is reported. After you complete your report via Integrity Hotline phone or webform, you will be assigned a unique code called a "report key" to check your report for feedback or questions, even if you choose to report anonymously. If reporting via email, you will receive an email response acknowledging your concern was received.

2. Review
   Report is reviewed and assigned to appropriate department within Target. You may be contacted by an investigator, if your contact information was provided, to obtain additional information. Target investigators are trained to conduct independent and objective investigations and will treat you with respect.

   Every allegation received is appropriately reviewed and your concerns will be shared with only necessary partners. You may be asked to provide additional information.

3. Resolution
   You will be notified when your concern has been looked into and the outcome is determined. Details of the outcome will not be shared with you to protect the confidentiality of the investigation. No matter the outcome, know that we appreciate when concerns are raised.

   You should not attempt to conduct your own investigation.

   Target does not tolerate retaliation of any kind against someone who reports a concern in good faith. Promptly contact any of our reporting options if you think you have experienced or witnessed retaliation.
