

Making the world a cleaner, safer, healthier place

A message from Dave Huml, President & CEO

For more than 150 years, Tennant Company has built a reputation as an ethical company—in fact, it’s one of our Guiding Principles. Our customers and partners have grown to trust that we will conduct business fairly, ethically and with integrity. Every day, we have the opportunity, challenge and responsibility to uphold our well-earned reputation, by choosing to act in a way that is grounded in ethical decision-making and integrity as we work to make the world a cleaner, safer, healthier place.

Our Business Ethics Guide provides the foundation that guides us in our decisions and behaviors. Reading and understanding this Guide and its underlying policies will help all employees make responsible choices in the course of doing business as a representative of Tennant Company. But, no document or policy can provide all the answers. If you are faced with a difficult situation or are ever unsure about the right decision, do not hesitate to contact one of the many resources identified to help make ethical decisions.

Our organization’s success depends not only on our employees acting ethically and lawfully, but also reporting known or suspected misconduct and cooperating with any investigations. When you report your concern, you help our organization identify and address potential violations of our policy. By speaking up, you are contributing to ensure Tennant Company remains an ethical, compliant, and transparent workplace.

As an enterprise with an international presence, we often times work in complex, nuanced environments different from our own and where we may routinely find ourselves navigating new situations, events, or circumstances. This global reach inherently introduces heightened regulatory and reputational risks for our business. This Business Ethics Guide, and the underlying policies, can be a valuable resource to help you navigate your decisions in our global business.

I am counting on you to protect and extend our reputation by living our Guiding Principles, committing to Tennant’s high ethical standards and striving to do what’s right because it’s the right thing to do.

Thank you,
